A Dull, Slow Market Was Experienced—Other Grains Were Dead Ones.

Office Republic,
Thursday, Nov. 1, 1900.

The speculative grain trade at this point appeared to be divided between two opinions when "change" opened up this morning, but soon after adopted the bear point of view, which they continued to hold throughout the day notwithstanding the fact that the advance on one side of the account was as much as the other. The speculative situation was a dull and narrow affair most of the day, particularly in the case of the cheaper grains, which were specifically dead, for all the attention they attracted, though prices were somewhat lower than yesterday.

The reactionists and professional bears, having recovered their nerve over night and encouraged by the character of the early cables and the timidity of the bulls, renewed their efforts to bring about a lower level to prices of wheat, and, finding several vulnerable points, they commenced a series of attacks, and the tendency was all one way from the time the markets opened up for business until the going announced the hour of closing.

A sort of panic feeling seemed to prevail at the close of the market, and the order of the day was apparently to sell, so very unanimously it was carried out. Trade gossip.

From August 1 to October 27 the principal exporting countries have shipped 5,225,000 bushels of wheat, or 1,225,000 bushels more than during the same period last year.

The Cincinnati Price Current says there are very few complaints of the crop in corn which is well advanced, and that the market is well supplied.

The English export of the stocks of wheat and flour at the ports by the last statement was 1,225,000 bushels, or 1,225,000 bushels more than during the same period last year.

The Liverpool Corn Trade News says that there is no fresh news regarding the Russian crop, and that the market is well supplied.

The weekly receipts of wheat and flour at the ports by the last statement was 1,225,000 bushels, or 1,225,000 bushels more than during the same period last year.

There may not be a decrease this week in the wheat visible, but the increase, if any, will be a small one. A year ago the increase was over 1,200,000 bushels.
